

Saad Bindawas is a Professor in the Department of Rehabilitation Sciences at King Saud University, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. He served as the chair of the department and director of the research center in the college of applied medical sciences. After earning his bachelor's degree in physical therapy from King Saud University, he completed his master's degree at Sydney University. He then completed his Ph.D. in rehabilitation sciences from the University of Texas Medical Branch. His research interests include musculoskeletal pain, geriatric rehabilitation, and rehabilitation outcome research. He has presented and consulted nationally and internationally on evidence-based health care, health professions education, and health-related quality of life.